The President of the French Republic's tour of the battlefields

The President of the French Republic will visit "the areas that were ravaged by the War and are nowadays being affected by the financial crisis". This tour through the Grand-Est and Hauts-de-France regions will take a little over five days and will visit ten local departments: Bas-Rhin, Moselle, Meurthe-et-Moselle, Meuse, Ardennes, Marne, Aisne, Nord, Pas-de-Calais and Somme.

In order to echo this dual focus and link the memory of the Great War with the current issues that are affecting these areas, every day of this tour will feature remembrance events and actions associated with the economic and social concerns that are relevant to the departments visited.

The programme will include visits to the major remembrance sites (the battlefield of Verdun, the cemetery of Notre-Dame-de-Lorette) and venues that have never before hosted the President of the French Republic. An international segment is planned featuring, most notably, a concert at Strasbourg Cathedral on Sunday 4th November.

- 4th November: Strasbourg
- 5th November: Morhange – Pont-à-Mousson

National Ceremonies (Paris)

9am: A ceremony in honour of the Field-Marsals of the Great War at the Hôtel National des Invalides

This ceremony, organised by the Army High-Command and the Military Governor of Paris, will take place in the presence of the President of the French Republic. It will pay tribute to the eight Field-Marsals that directed the fighting during World War I, striving for ultimate victory throughout the conflict, five of whom are interred at Les Invalides.

11am: International ceremony at the Arc de Triomphe

More than 120 foreign dignitaries representing the countries involved in the fighting during the Great War, the institutions of the European Union, the United Nations and a number of other international organisations are due to attend this ceremony. This will include, as it does every year, the awarding of military honours, a tribute to those who died for France and, as has been the case every year since 2012, the laying of a wreath and the rekindling of the flame on the tomb of the Unknown Soldier. The ceremony will be rounded off, in this centenary year for the Armistice, by a number of remembrance and artistic, notably musical, elements. A speech by the President of the French Republic is also expected.

1pm: An official lunch will be hosted at the Elysée Palace in the presence of the President of the French Republic and the foreign dignitaries. Other lunch events are organised by the Prime Minister, the Minister for Europe and Foreign Affairs and the Defence Minister in order to host their own counterparts that form part of the various foreign delegations.

3pm: Opening of the Paris Peace Forum

Foreign dignitaries attending the ceremony of 11th November, joined by some of their counterparts who perhaps did not take part in this event, will be invited to attend the opening ceremony of the very first Paris Peace Forum in the afternoon. The Forum aims to make concrete proposals on peace and global leadership in all areas. The opening ceremony will include a speech by the Secretary General of the United Nations. It will be followed by a session where a number of Heads of State and Heads of Government will take the opportunity to present their own themes and projects simultaneously at various "villages".

The Forum will continue its work on 12th and 13th November. Driven by an association that unites partners for north and south, it will invite contributions mostly from non-State actors drawn from across the globe: think tanks, associations, NGOs. It will reconvene in the following years with the aim of becoming a regular major international meeting.
